Clean Water for North Carolina To Host Regional Summit on the Atlantic Coast Pipeline Sept. 9 in Wilson

What: A wide-ranging program of speakers and discussion on whether the Atlantic Coast Pipeline is actually needed and its economic impacts; the “blast zones” and “high consequence areas” along the proposed pipeline, how landowners and communities are being affected; Environmental Justice impacts on Native American, African-American and other communities of color and low income; and how safe, renewable energy and efficiency will help make eastern NC independent of fossil fuels, and prevent rapid climate change.

Keynote speakers: Cathy Kunkel, Institute for Energy Economics and Financial Analysis and Jacqui Patterson, NAACP Environmental and Climate Justice Program

When: Saturday, September 9th, 1:30 to 5:30 PM, light refreshments provided

Where: Wilson Community College, Del Mastro Auditorium
